

Children's

Clothing is one of the biggest features of our business (not a side issue as it is with others). One entire floor is devoted to the wants of the short pants wearers, boys from 2½ to 16 years. Suits, Overcoats, Reefers and all other wearables in an endless variety of styles, fabrics, colors and patterns, and all grades, from the cheapest that is reliable to the finest to be obtained anywhere. One of our strongest lines is our grade of Top Suits and Reefers. In it you'll find the same qualities as in other people's $6 and $7 lines, but made better and fit better and more stylish than theirs.

$5.00

Another big value grade is the Long Pants Three-piece Suits, sizes 15 to 19 years, at $7.50.

Single Breasted Sacks, in plaids, checks, Scotch mixtures and plain blue and black chevrons. The equal of any $10 suit in town. Finer ones at all prices, up to $25.

Boys' and Children's SHOES, HATS and furnishings of all kinds. The only complete stock in town. Reliable qualities only at less than others' prices.

REVISION ALMOST DONE

Committee at Work on the Building Regulations.

NEW CODE ENTIRELY MODERN

Boston Was the Model Used, With Modifications From English and French Cities—Effort to Increase the Salaries of the Assistant Assessors and Excise Board.

The committee recently appointed by the Board of Commissioners to revise and perfect the Boston building regulations will have its work done in time to have the results submitted to Congress early in the coming session, and it is safe to say that the new code will present all the modern ideas in building.

Through the State Department copies have been obtained of the regulations in force in all leading foreign cities, and these have been supplemented by those of the cities of this country, and all have been before the committee as a guide in its deliberations.

The city of Boston supplied the model by which to fashion the law for Washington, but the best features from the regulations in vogue in Manchester, London, and Paris will be incorporated.

A new feature of importance will be the provision for introducing electrical appliances and connections into buildings without incurring the risk of starting a fire, and the very best method of accomplishing this result will be adopted.

The object in view of the committee is to frame a code from which will be eliminated all elasticity as to construction, and when the work shall be completed it will be submitted to the attorney for the District for a determination as to whether the regulations in any way conflict with the law. It will also be reviewed by the Commissioners prior to submission to Congress.

The necessity for new building regulations has been constantly before the Commissioners. They have been amended from time to time as each recurring necessity arose, there being a change by modification or addition as each emergency suggested. They are at present, in the estimation of the building inspector, in reasonably good shape, but still equal to the requirements of a first-class city.

The original regulations adopted by the District were framed by a commission of which the first building inspector, Thomas H. Plowman, was chairman, and they have been amended from the date of their adoption down to the present time.

THOSE IN CHARGE OF IT.

The present committee is composed of John H. Brady, building inspector; Appleton Clark, William Morris, Robert F. King, James G. Hill, and James Freeman, all well-known citizens. Its work is now so far under way that the Commissioners upon the request of Mr. Brady, have detailed Daniel Curry to assist in getting the material reduced to a system for consideration.

Mr. Brady and Mr. Curry will devote the whole of next week to the revision of the details, by whom the classification and compensation will be made in time for a final meeting of the commission in the week following.

An important recommendation made by the Commissioners in their estimates for 1897 was that for the addition of $1,000 as salary to each of the assistant assessors, increasing their compensation to $4,000 per annum. The regular item of $3,000 each, to meet the salary of the assistant assessors, and the additional item of $1,000 appears as recompense for services as an excise board.

ESTIMATES FOR SALARIES.

The recommendations for advances in the salaries of the assessor's clerical force are shown as follows: The estimates being given as they occur, with the 1896 figures appearing first:

One assessor, $3,500, same as before; one assistant, from $1,600 to $2,000; one assistant, from $1,600 to $1,800; special clerks at $1,400 each, no advance; three clerks, $1,200 each, no advance; one draughtsman, from $1,200 to $1,400; three clerks, $1,000 each, no advance; assistant clerk, $900, no advance; clerk in charge of records, $1,000, no advance; clerk to board of assistant assessors, $1,200, no advance; clerk, $900, no advance; license clerk, from $1,200 to $1,400; inspector of licenses, $1,200, no advance; messenger and driver, $600, no advance. Total for 1896, $35,000; for 1897, aggregate $38,600. Increase, $3,600.

The estimates for the assessor's force fall somewhat short of the anticipations but the necessity for scaling up to all departments alike.

If adopted, the suggestion in favor of the assistant assessors will make their salaries each $500 in excess of that of the assessors, but their duties include the large extra work attached to the excise department.

Buried With Temporal Honors.

Mr. E. T. Tappit, a draughtsman, who lived at No. 621 E street southeast, died at his residence Thursday afternoon at 2:35 o'clock. His funeral occurred today at 1:45 o'clock from the residence. The deceased was an honorary member of the De Molay Mounted Commandery, Knights Templar, by whom the remains were escorted to their last resting place in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Words Ended With Blows.

William Cannon, colored, living on Massachusetts avenue northwest, had a cash five inches long in the scalp severed last night at the Emergency Hospital. Cannon went to the house of a girl, he said, and he and his brother had some words, which finally ended in blows and he received one from some blunt instrument.

Made an Ugly Wound.

While skylarking at the Norfolk and Washington steamers' wharf last evening Enoch King, a colored boy, accidentally cut William H. Garner, also colored, on the wrist, making an ugly wound and nearly severing the hand of the latter. Garner was sent to the Emergency Hospital in No. 4 patrol wagon by Policeman Stenhouse.

THINNED OUT BY FRIGHT

Candidates for Police Court in Dread of the Whipping Post.

MR. PUGH GIVES A REASON

Two Juvenile Prisoners Pleaded That They Had Only Been Playing "Purdy for Knucks."

Who Sang "Sally of the Shifting Sands" With Warble at Workhouse.

"If this talk of establishing a whipping post continues," said Mr. Pugh this morning as his red necktie loomed up in the doorway of Judge Kimball's court, "we won't have any prisoners here at all."

Mr. Pugh's scarp reflection was caused by the unusually small number of prisoners in the dock. In fact the fear of the whipping post is almost as prevalent among the lower class of negroes in the city as was the Edmunds law scare, and many of them think it is already in operation.

Policeman Hayes, of the Sixth precinct, arranged Marian Buckett and Dominick Furlong, one white and the other colored, charged with disorderly conduct.

He testified that large crowds of the boys assembled on his beat every night, playing marbles, and were a source of great annoyance to the residents of the street.

PURDY FOR KNUCKS.

"Your honor," said Dominick, "me an' this feller was just playing purdy for knucks. We wasn't doing anything to get arrested for."

"How many times have you been arrested?"

"Once before this."

The colored boy also admitted having a police court record, but upon promising to keep a way from the neighborhood in which they were arrested, Judge Kimball took his personal bonds.

Robert Hawkins, a venerable looking negro, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and drunkenness and was sent to the workhouse for fifteen days.

Alice Jackson, a denizen of Freeman's alley, well known to the police, qualified her plea of guilty by saying:

"Judge, yo' honor, I wasn't disorderly enough for dat man to arrest me."

The court thought she was, however, and she got the usual sentence.

Henry Keller, proprietor of a blacksmith shop on Florida avenue, was charged with occupying public space for private purposes. The warrant was sworn out by Charles Hurley, a colored boy, who wanted a liquor license and whose application Keller refused to sign.

USED THE PAVEMENT.

The testimony of Hurley was to the effect that Keller used the pavement in front of his place for a workshop, keeping the sidewalk continually obstructed. The court took the defendant's personal bonds.

Louis Bergeval, alias Satterfield, was charged with vagrancy by Policeman Hayes, of the Sixth precinct, and was sentenced to ninety days in the workhouse.

Sallie Marshall, a South Washington negress, tested her lung powers and the endurance of the neighbors last night by singing "Sally of the Shifting Sands."

Just about the stage of the melody when Sallie is about to expound the man with the hog eye, however, a policeman swooped down and the vocalist was a prisoner.

"Your honor, is a lady got to go out in her back yard when she wants to sing?" demanded Sallie indignantly. "I don't see what harm I was doin' singin' in de street."

SALLIE WENT DOWN.

The court thought, however, that vocal joys should be recognized with appropriate penalties, and Sallie went down.
